charged with forgery in the third degree for stamping the name of C. C. Cobb, agent of the trunk lines, on a railroad ticket.

The complaint spoken of was made in an action in which Weed sued to recover certain property which he alleged he had given his wife on condition that she give up a disreputable business in which she was engaged in 1885, a condition she had not kept.

In addition to his documentary proof that the plaintiff was Weed's widow, Speaker Suizer put on the witness stand Mrs. Josephine E. Bishop Carpenter of 163 East 105th street, who said she had known the plaintiff nine years, and that Mr. Weed called her his wife.

Carlislo Norwood, in opening for the defence, said it was not denied that Mr. Weed had recognized the plaintiff as his wife, but, novertheless, at the time of the marriage ceremony she had a husband living. That husband was a crook, and she had been a panel house thief and a notorious woman.

bill." Mr. Gladstone declined to consider the amendment. Even if no mention at all were made of the supremacy of Parliament, he said, that supremacy would be absolutely unlimited and unaltered throughout the three kingdoms. The Irish members remained silent throughout the delate, and the burden of delence was leit entirely to the Ministers, who dealt with every proposed amendment in the most summary manner possible.

Sir Henry James's second amendment was discussed at some length after Mr. Gladstone had spoken against it. Eventually Mr. Gladstone agreed to accept the amendment on the condition that its place in the bill be determined by the Government. Mr. Ballour congratulated the Government upon having thus closed a long and useless discussion. The amendment was then approved.

THE MUCH-DISCUSSED SEAL.

Sir Charles Russell Deules Our Claim to Jurisdiction in Hebring Sea. Pages, May 16,-Sir Charles Bussell resumed his argument to-day in behalf of the British case before the Behring Sea Tribunal of He argued that the seizures made of British vessels in Behring Sea were not justifiable, and he reviewed at length the origin and nature of the rights transferred by Russia to the United States in 1867. He asserted that the ukase of 1700, in which Russia asserted jurisdiction over her subjects on all hunting grounds and establishments on the coast of America from the lifty-lifth degree of north latitude to Behring Strait and thence southward to Japan, and on the Alcutian. Kurile, and other islands in all the 'northeastern" ocean, applied only to Russian

The ukase of 1821, in which the Czar of Russia laid claim to exclusive jurisdiction over the northwest coast of America down to Russia laid claim to exclusive jurisdiction over the northwest coast of America down to the fifty-first narallel of latitude together with a considerable portion of the opposite coast of Asia and over the neighboring seas to the extent of 100 Italian miles from any part of the coasts and intervening islands so appropriated had. Sir Charles Russell pointed out, elicited earnest protests both from Great Britain and the United States; and subsequent treaties recognized that the pretension of Russia to exclusive jurisdiction over the waters of Behring Sea was untenable. Hence the rights derived from Russia by the United States were merely the ordinary property rights in the soil and not in the scals.

Sir Charles Russell devoted the afternoon to discussing the treaties concluded in 1824-25 between Russia. England, and the United States. He endeavored to prove from the language of the treaties in question that Great Pritain had nover departed from her objection to Russia's claim of exclusive jurisdiction in Behring Sea, and that Behring Sea was not a mare clausum, but that all nations had a right to free navigation in it.

Sir Charles incidentally recurred to the forged interpolations in Russian documents to sustain the American case. He said that he was sorry if he had unintentionally caused umbrane, but he would have to make further allusion to the forgeries, as not until they were discovered was the claim of property in the soals elaborated.

Seizing Dynamite Bombs. Paris. May 16.-The police found to-day several bombs, many pounds of dynamite, and a chest of burglar's tools buried in a lot surrounding a shed in the suburb of Levallois. The tombs were more powerful than those before seen in Paris. Each consisted of an old before seen in Paris. Each consisted of an old can, formerly used for preserving peas and still bearing the labed, a glass tube filled with acid, and around the tube a packing of giant powder and small pieces of from.

Any one of the bombs is powerful enough to blow up a house or to wound scores of persons if it were exploited in the streets. The police do not feel certain whether or not the bombs and dynamite were buried by Anarchists or by the hurgiars who owned the chest of tools. They have arrested Badon, owner of the property on which the tools and explosives were found; Vinchow, a mechanic living hear the shed, and Spannagel, Marchand, and Leville, three Anarchists.

A WALL STREET BROKER'S INFATUA-In the summer of 1889 George C. Seyforth, a young butcher, obtained board at the farmyoung butcher, obtained board at the farm-house of Bertha Dorn's father, near Hicks-ville, L. L. George was then 28 years old; Bertha was 18. Each liked the other, and that liking grew steadily until two years later they became engaged to be married. They corresponded and quarrelled like true She May Have Had Another Husband When She Married Werd, and She Kept a Rouse of Ill Pame, but Weed Owned Her as His Wife After Rush Was Dend and Buried, The trial of Annie Weed's suit to recover dower in the property of Mortimer M. Weed, a broker of this city, who died two years ago, was begun yesterday before Justice Trunx and lovers. Last year Bertha noticed that George's love was growing cold, but when she re-prosched him he swore that he still loved her. a jury in Part III. of the Supreme Court. The defendants are Robert M. Weed, a brother, and One day in the beginning of this year she the other heirs at law. Their defence is that learned that he had married. For eight days the plaintiff had a husband living when she Bertha grieved over her uphappiness. Upon the ninth day she began suit against George went through the marriage ceremony with for $10,000 damages.

Such were the elements of the pastoral that came before Judge Fitzsimons in the City Court yesterday afternoon. Miss Dorn was the only witness of the day. She was calm and composed when she spoke of her broken heart, and wept only when her lawyer called attention to the fact that she had brought the suit nine days after she had learned that her Seyforth's letters to Berths were then read. The first one began, "My dear Baby, your sweet, hot letter gave me much pleasure." In another letter he sent her "A barrel of craving kisses." Seyforth's spelling was not always of the best, but his sentiments were all right.

ogstæd the plaintiff as his wife, but novertheless, at the time of the marriage ceremony she had a husband living. That husband was a crook, and she had been a panel house thief and a notorlous woman.

Ills first witness in support of his statements was John H. Davis, a salesman for logers, leet & Co., who said that when he kept a restaurant in Third avenue, opposite the Cooper Institute, a customer named Leroy Rush came in with the plaintiff, whom he introduced to the witness as Mrs. Rush, saying, "Mr. Davis, my wife." This took place in the evening, some time in 1875 or 1870. He never saw the plaintiff after that, so far as he remembered. John Opp, a saloon keeper in the Howery, opposite Bleecker street, said he knew the plaintiff after that, so far as he remembered, there is a saloon one day and Russintroduced the woman as his wife.

Ex-Central Office Defective Thomas Dusonbury, who is now a special detective of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, said that he arrested the plaintiff in 1871 for robbing a man at the panel game. Leroy Rush called at Police Headquarters, where she was locked up, and asked to see his wife, meaning the prisoner. Dusenbury took him to the prisoner's cell, and Rush and the plaintiff taked together. On cross-examination the witness admitted that the plaintiff was discharged on the panol game complaint for want of evidence.

Amos Soully said that when he was a bartender in sharkey's saloon at Fourth avenua and Thirteenth street, in 1875, the plaintiff had rooms overhead. She lived with Rush as his wife. She was known as Molly Small and Annie Rush. The name Small was on the door. Scully, who was Sharkey's brother in law, said that men with women whom they represented to be their wives hired rooms from Mrs. Rush.

Ex-Policeman Rissert testified that when he was ward detective of the Fifth street squad he knew the plaintiff under the name of Annie Small and Moliy Rush. She kept an alleged house of assignation at Fourth avenue and Thirteenth street. The place was once afted. Policeman MISS BERTHA DORN.

"One day," the witness said, "after he had decided to have the wedding soon, he said to me that he hoped i wouldn't he untrue to him. 'Very well,' I said,' If you will be true to me I will return the same.' I told him that I had never had steady company before. When he went away he kissed me as usual."

"Well, what happened after that?"

"He called on me unexpectedly several times, and I said, 'Chris.' I said, 'you suspect that I go with others or you wouldn't be coming here to take me by surprise. Well, you're left,' I said to him. 'You're left,' 'Well,' he said, 'what's the matter with that young man who lives next to the butcher?" 'Chris,' I said, 'I only had an introduction to that gentleman, and don't know him further.'"

"Did Beyforth give you any presents?"

"Yes; he gave me a ring, an umbrella, a valentine, and an Easter egg."

During the cross-examination her lawyer objected to a question put by the defendant's counsel. The winess nodded in approval and said:

THE ST. JOHNLAND FARM.

Boody Says It Should Be Sold. The Kings County Board of Supervisors has awarded the contract for building several new additions to the county farm at St. Johnland to ex-Senator James W. Birkett, the treasurer

"It was a great mistake to divide the county institutions between Flatbush and St. Johnland. In fact, it was a gigantic blunder. I think we should get rid of St. Johnland and apply the proceeds on work at Flatbush. We should sell it, even at a loss. Of the 5.110 persons, including attendants, under the control of the Charities Commissioners, only 900 are at the St. Johnland institutions. So far this so-called county farm has cost the county between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, and it will require a couple of millions more to carry out all the projected improvements."

Mayor Boody is an ex-officio member of the Board of Supervisors, but he was not in his sent when the Board voted Mr. Birkett his contract.

Machinery ought to be provided whereby the vagaries of the Executive Council should be restrained. Mr. Ballour-suggested that the final decision of the point be deferred until a later stage in the bill.

The amendment offered by Nir John Brodrick was rejected by a vote of 303 to 247.

Mr. Gladstone declined to agree to an adjournment of the House over Derly Day, in order to enable the members to witness the great race, which will take place at the end of this month.

Sir Henry James, Liberal Unionist for Bury, moved that the imperial Parliament have the right to control the laws passed by the Irish Legislature. After a long debate the motion was willmirawn.

Henry Kimber, Conservative member for Wandsworth, moved that, when any question should arise whether or not a law passed by the Irish legislature related exclusively to Ireland, the imperial Parliament should have the right of decision in the matter. The motion was resisted by Mr. Gladstone, and eventually was withdrawn.

Mr. Henry James moved that the "supreme power of the imperial Parliament remains undiminished by any proviso of the Home Rule bill." Mr. Gladstone declined to consider the amendment. Even if no mention at all were made of the supremacy of Parliament, he said, ets, and many others who were not Endeavorers, or even Christians, took advantage of the rates and, buying excursion tickets, sold the The tickets bore the provision that only the purchaser could return on them, but it would have been difficult to enforce the stipulation. The trunk lines also ruled that the return tickets must be endorsed by their agent, C. C. Cobb, in this city, to entitle the holder to passage back. The ticket scalpers soon learned that of the nine roads in the Trunk Line Asquirement that Cobb's name should appear on the tickets. The Fennsylvania road was exacting in this regard, and the scalpers, on reseiling the return tickets, told the purchasers that the Pennsylvania tickets were not good without this signature.

There were strings of people in lines at the office of Mr. Cobb, and some of his clerks were particular about getting those who presented return tickets to say they were the same persons who had bought the tickets. To expedite matters and remove this friction, it is alleged, Nathan B. Blum had a stamp made with C. C. Cobb's signature, and so stamped the return tickets which he sold. Cagney Bres. who are in the same business at 393 Broadway, are also indicted for the same offence. The Fennsylvania Railrond people pressed both indictuents.

Blum had employed Senator Cantor and David Newberger to defend him, but they dropped out of the case. He secured the services of John R. Fellows on Monday night, and early yesterday morning retained Justice Lynn of the First District Court. When the case was called by Justice Ingraham, Mr. Lynn asked for an adjournment, saying that they were not prepared for trial.

Justice Ingraham said the indictment had been found several months are and the defendant should have seen to it that he was ready. He directed that the case proceed.

Mr. Lynn said, something about his client being "pushed" by the Fennsylvania Railrond Company. The people of the Nate of New York are pushing this case, and I am here to see that justice is done. Such remarks from you are entirely improper, and I will not tolerate them."

"Of course, your Honor, I know that the people—"was as far as Mr. Lynn could get in reply, as the Judge said:

"Call the jury."

Congressman Fellows had come into court during the later part of the discussion, and asked Justice Ingraham:

"Mn I ounderstand, then, your Honor, that the case is to go on?"

"Your understanding is correct." said Justice Ingraham.

"Then I must withdraw from the case," replied Col. Fellows:

"I have nothing to do with that." returned the ludge.

MRS. DORA COHEN KILLS HERSELF. Lynn appeared through the day in defence of the prisoner.

It was shown that on July 8 last a person named A. Bandit had bought at Cincinnati an excursion ticket to New York for $18. The return half was sold to Mr. Blum. Detective 8mith of the Pennsylvaniz road on July 14 hought the return half from Blum for $18.50. It was stamped "C. C. Cobb." The fare over that road one way was $18 at the time.

C. C. Cobb testified that after July 11 the tickets were not stamped with his name but were signed. It was shown that Blum had obtained a rubber stamp with the fac-simile of Cobb's signature, and that the ticket Smith bought was stamped on July 14.

The defence sought to show that some one else in Blum's office might have used the stamp. Blum did not take the stand.

G. G. Lansing, another cut-rate man, when asked by Assistant District Attorney Wellman If Blum and he were ticket scalpers, replied:

"We're commission agents. The term scalpers is used as you apply shyster to certain lawyers."

(000. His assets are to a large extent a matter of mere conjecture, as he owns property which might be made very valuable could his schemes, in some cases half carried through, be brought to perfection. For instance, he has a large amount of land in Staten Island which, as it stands to-day is worth perhaps not more than $300 an acre. He has figured on putting an electric road through the property, which would bring the value to say $3,000 an acre. He has a big electric plant half built, in which he has sunk $200,000, but has no more money. My clients may put in $100,000 and finish his enterprise, as they believe that the (allure is an honest one, and that they can best help themselves by helping Mr. Wiman."

In a general statement of the case the servant said that she first noticed the woman Harvey when she came to the house to do scrubbing. On her second visit the woman stayed all day in Mrs. Hooper's room. She then noticed that the Harvey woman could get anything she wanted in the house.

She came almost daily after her first visit. On several nights last week a bright light was seen in a back window of the house and the sound of women's voices in carnest prayer could be heard. One woman seemed to be exhorting the other two.

Mrs. Harvey, it is related, represented herself as Jesus Christ, and made them bow down and worship her. On Friday night persons in the neighborhood were awakened after midnight by sounds of signing.

During the exhortations Mrs. Harvey is said to have taken wine, and, after representing herself as the living God, to have passed it to the two women, saying: "Take this in remembrance of me." After partiking of the wine both Mrs. Hooper and Miss Maxwell are said to have prayed to and wershipped Mrs. Harvey.
